

Whitepaper

7 Things you need to know before you can start your Blockchain-Business in Switzerland

Are you thinking of setting up a company in Switzerland? Here are 7 things you need to know before you can incorporate your business under applicable Swiss law.

Legal

1 Form

Decide on a legal form that suits you. In Switzerland, there are various company forms, such as the stock corporation (AG) or the limited liability company (GmbH), which could be suitable for your project.

Incorporation

2 documents

The founding documents, whether a regular company or a blockchain company, must be carefully drafted. These include, among other things, the articles of incorporation, which set the framework for the company. However, the founding contract is also highly relevant, as it regulates the relationships between the shareholders. Make sure that the contract has been properly signed by each party. It is advisable to consult an expert before the incorporation to make sure that everything has been thought of.

Tax and social

3 security

Make sure you know and understand the tax and social security obligations under Swiss law. It is important that all required notifications and payments are completed and made on time.

Check

4 regulations

Clarify if your company is required to be licensed or approved by certain authorities and take all necessary steps to proactively comply with these requirements.

Market

5 research

Research the market in detail and make sure that there is a target group or demand for your venture and what the competitive situation is.

6 Registration

A company in Switzerland must be registered in the commercial register. Certain documents, such as foundation documents, are required for this. These are submitted to the competent registry office.

7 Financing

Proper financial planning is necessary and important if you want to start your business in the Swiss market. There are many options for raising capital. Possible options can be equity, debt or crowdfunding.

In summary, it is important to thoroughly inform yourself about your plan to start a company in Switzerland. Plan all steps carefully and get help from experts who can support you in your venture. This will ensure that the process goes smoothly and expeditiously and that you can concentrate on the essentials as soon as possible. The operational activities of your company from Switzerland.

If you have any questions about the incorporation process or need support on any other topic, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Do you want to know more?

Contact me know

